

Flooding on the East Gallatin River May 25, 2008

Montana DNRC Floodplain Management

The East Gallatin River flows 42 miles in a northwesterly direction through the Gallatin valley, Gallatin County, Montana. The East Gallatin begins about one mile east of downtown Bozeman, Montana. The river joins the main stem of the Gallatin River 2.3 miles north of Manhattan, Montana. Throughout its course, the river traverses mostly valley floor ranch and farm land with typical summer flows of approximately 50 cfs.

East Gallatin River Flooding 2008

East Gallatin River Flooding 2008

East Gallatin River Flooding 2008

